Airborne Laser is exhibited at the Dayton Air Show

KIRTLAND AFB, N.M. — Lt. Col. Joel Owens, left, a member of the Airborne Laser program office at Kirtland Air Force Base, N.M., discusses the Airborne Laser with Gen. Lester Lyles, center, commander of Air Force Materiel Command, and Lt. Gen. Richard V. Reynolds, commander of the Aeronautical Systems Center. The two Wright-Patterson AFB generals toured the Airborne Laser exhibit July 21 during the two-day Dayton, Oh. Air Show. Program officials were on hand to explain to the general public how the laser-armed aircraft would be able to destroy missiles from hundreds of miles away with a beam of light. @
